

COPYRIGHT INFRINGEMENT

INTELLECTUAL PROPERTY AND COPYRIGHT

CipherTel Pty Ltd views the infringement of third party intellectual property rights, including copyright infringement, as a very serious matter.

Content that is protected by copyright includes, but is not limited to, items such as movies, music, software, TV shows, books, and games.

The laws around copyright can be complex and customers should exercise extreme caution when downloading or accessing content online. Using the internet to share works protected by copyright without the owner's permission, such as downloading a movie and making a copy for others, can be illegal and in breach of copyright laws.

The following website provides assistance on identifying copyright content and other helpful information: Australian Copyright Council: www.copyright.org.au

CipherTel does not authorise or condone any kind of copyright infringement. Our contract terms clearly state that our customers must not use CipherTel's network or services for any unlawful purposes, including copyright infringement.

If a customer uses CipherTel's network or systems to infringe copyright, this may constitute a breach of our Customer Relationship Agreement which may allow CipherTel to suspend or terminate an account holder's service.

CipherTel has also adopted a "repeat infringer policy" in accordance with section 116AH of the Copyright Act 1968 and reserves the right to suspend or terminate a customer account in accordance with such policy.

Copyright owners can direct notifications that relate to allegations of copyright infringement to:
